

Saba senegalensis

Saba senegalensis (Bambara: Nsaban or Zaban; English: Senegal saba; French (from a Pulaar bastardization): liane saba; Wolof: mad or madd or “kabaa” in Gambian Wolof; Pulaar: laare) is a shrub-like fruit tree of the Apocynaceae^[1] family, native to the Sahel region of sub-Saharan Africa. The tree grows predominantly on riverbanks and in woodlands.^[2] ICRISAT has cited S. senegalensis as a useful food crop plant and as a tool to combat soil degradation in rural Africa.^[3]
