Wait—you're transphobic?

You have a problem with a guy having his penis removed? He's a chick, you asshole. God fucked up and made him a dude, but luckily we have the technology to fix that mistake. Why couldn't he just be a drag queen? Well, for one, he needs to feel a penis inside him. No, his butt doesn't count. He needs to feel a penis go in and out of his vagina—you know, like all women crave. That feeling of having your vagina fucked. It's a primal urge, and to deny some woman this feeling just because she's a dude is downright barbaric.

Coming here from The Advocate? Read Parker Molloy's dialogue on trans\* non-acceptance with a willfully un-PC man here.

Haven't you seen all the totally functional, happily married, normal trannies walking around? They aren't all dead, you know. They sell flowers at the local village and bake pies for their scores of adopted children. They're non-heteronormative. In fact, the only thing more normal than castrating yourself and taking tons of hormones to grow tits is chopping them off. Women who get double mastectomies and then have their cunts turned inside out are just righting a wrong. They need to have a weird cheese blintz-looking thing sticking out of their previous cooch because it feels way better than wearing a strap-on. Sure, the nerve endings aren't the same as a real dick, but standing up to go pee pee is something these women were born to do. How dare you have a problem with that?

You will be totally comfortable when your daughter marries a post-op dude and you should have no problems with her smoking his blintz. When your dad tells you he is going to have his penis removed and thrown into a biowaste container at the hospital, your soul will become a placid lake of calm. "That's totally normal, dad" you'll say and begin to call him Mom2 from that day forward.

When Janet Mock appears on MSNBC and talks about growing up as a black chick, nobody's going to bat an eye. We'll all be totally comfortable with him retroactively rewriting history and putting a skirt on all his boyhood memories.

I kid. I kid. Of course it's fucking unusual. We're all transphobic. We aren't blind. We see there are no old trannies. They die of drug overdoses and suicide way before they're 40 and nobody notices because nobody knows them. They are mentally ill gays who need help, and that help doesn't include being maimed by physicians. These aren't women trapped in a man's body. They are nuts trapped in a crazy person's body. I see them on the streets of New York. They are guys with tits and a sweatshirt. They wear jeans and New Balance. "What's the matter with simply being a fag who wears makeup?" I think when I see them. You're not a woman. You're a tomboy at best. Get fucked in the ass. And ladies, if you're a butch lesbian, you're a lady with a lot of testosterone. Put a dick on a belt and fuck your girlfriend. You don't need to turn your vagina inside out. You're not a man. You don't even know what Turf Builder is.

By pretending this is all perfectly sane, you are enabling these poor bastards to mutilate themselves. This insane war on pronouns is about telling people what to do. It may empower you to shut down a school's computer system because they phrased your gender wrong, but that's just a game to you. To them, it's a life-changing event that fucks them up. To fight against transphobia is to justify trannies. To justify trannies is to allow mentally ill people to mutilate themselves. When your actions are getting people mutilated, you're at war with them.

It's not great for women, either. Buying woman parts from a hospital and calling yourself a broad trivializes what it is to be a woman. Womanhood is not on a shelf next to wigs and makeup. Similarly, being a dude is quite involved. Ripping your vaginal canal out of your fly doesn't mean you are going to start inventing shit and knowing how cement works. Being a man is awesome. So is being a woman. We should revere these creations, not revel in their bastardization. Being gay is a weird quirk that happens at birth. It's like being an albino. If you're born that way, you shouldn't fight it. You don't need to change who you are. In fact, doing so is sexist, misandrist, homophobic, and further damages the lives of the mentally ill.

there have been like 130 comments since i spent too much time replying to something that has since been buried but ME SO MAD WANT PEOPLE KNOW ME TYPE THINKY THOUGHTS!!!!!! so yeah whatever who cares, i know, and i feel silly for doing this but fuck it, here is what i said about a million years ago in response to a comment about how this should be taken down:

i agree that the opinions expressed here are pretty reprehensible. if you don't feel right in your body the last thing you need is another reason to feel like an outsider

it's also...now that i'm thinking more about it, more just a sad example of one (arrested, myopic, likely plagued with desperately finding the most controversial 'sub-sub-sub-subversive' thing to say just to make noise) person's thoughts, that in their bold insensitivity, become a good argument against themselves

maybe people will read it and want to be more compassionate

'an example of what not to be'

you just copy and pasting the same posts over and over again in an attempt to upset people and see if you can push them to suicide?

Because I'm going to share a little secret with you: people like you are my motivation to not kill myself. I refuse to roll over and die just to spite every hate-filled fuck in this world.

You're right. It's not what you physically have that makes your gender, it's what's in your mind. It just so happens that transexual women who are born with male sex organs get these procedures to match their mind.

Rick Lopez Jr. · 7 hours ago

Being gay is a genetic expression. It's abnormal but it's natural. Your mental illness is not. Gender Dysphoria doesn't exist in areas where remote cultures live now or in history. People don't need to become medical monsters to love themselves. And no, the majority doesn't think we're mentally ill. That's YOU attempting to paint the world with your own ignorance or the ignorance of others and extrapolating it. And no, men have a prostate in their ASS for a reason. Gays provide a very necessary tool for nature, our gene when expressed in a heterosexual makes them much more fertile than normal humans, especially women, and we provide a natural safety net for orphans, such as homosexual animals do in nature. Also if gays were unnnatural, men wouldn't orgasms from having rock hard dicks massaging the insides of their asses. Don't attempt to mix my natural nature with your unnatural mental illness, child. And lastly, DRAG QUEENS are not part of the TRANS community. It's THEATER to us. No drag queen wants to cut off their dicks. Drag queens do it for fun and when they get home, honey the slippers and makeup come off. They don't suffer from MENTAL ILLNESS like you do.

3 ^ | v · Reply · Share ›

M. R. → Rick Lopez Jr. · 3 hours ago

Do you really know about the history of remote cultures throughout all time? Because there are many examples of trans people, or people changing their gender in a society.

^ | v · Reply · Share ›

Marita → Rick Lopez Jr. · 4 hours ago

What's with the constant obsession with "cutting off dicks"? Trans Women don't do this. Could it be your latent desire rearing its head?

2 ^ | v · Reply · Share ›

Ezmyrelda → Rick Lopez Jr. · 7 hours ago

Your hypocrisy is fucking hilarious.

If you are trying to reply to me at least try to keep it inline.

When I get home my bra and makeup comes off too.. So the fuck what? I don't take out my brain and hang up my gender when I get home..

and drag isn't theater. It's minstrelism.. But I wouldn't expect you to understand that because you are a willing tool of the patriarchy.. The same patriarchy that for thousands of years has held you down too.

You're getting so angry your rhetoric is starting to sound completely batshit.. Slow down and try to choose your words more carefully. Because what you just wrote made no sense at all.

Splitting paragraphs is also helpful for clarity.. Lets see if we can't just get some cogent arguments out of you yet!

And you're also a BAD PERSON, anyone who would compare 'Drag Queens' to 'Blackface actors / musicians' is a subtle racist and you've just let your racist flag fly!

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Ezmyrelda → Rick Lopez Jr. • 5 hours ago

Oh? Why is that? Putting on makeup to impersonate and make fun of black people is racist but putting on makeup to impersonate and make fun of women isn't misogynistic? Ok, there buddy boy. Hypocrisy much?

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

M. R. → Ezmyrelda • 3 hours ago

Drag is not about making fun of women. The jokes and references made are not at women's expense.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Azima Khan → Rick Lopez Jr. • 6 hours ago

While I don't fully agree with Ezmyrelda that Drag is minstrelism, it's ridiculous to call her a bad person because her opinion is different from yours while not harmful to you.

1 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Ezmyrelda → Azima Khan • 5 hours ago

Ok, then I concede that we need a new term for it.. It sure as hell isn't worlds apart though.. You may think it's all in fun but I'm not laughing. How precisely and exactly is it different?.. With drag queens it's even worse because they aren't even singing or playing a musical instrument themselves. Actually, Ok.. Worse is debatable.. Which is worse? subjugating a group of people for several hundred years and trying to co opt their jobs after the fact or subjugating a gender for thousands of years and then putting on makeup and heels to reinforce stereotypes about how women think, talk, and act? It suffices to say that the oppression olympics are fucked up and no, as a woman I absolutely do not see a distinction.. I see gay men trying to lift themselves up by shitting all over another group.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

M. R. → Ezmyrelda • 3 hours ago

You really misunderstand drag. If it was done by a bunch of straight men you could have a point. However, it is about the fabulousity of womanhood, the elegance and the characters you can be. It is about gay men unleashing an inner diva that society looks down on in men. It's about illusion and beauty, NOT oppression.

Many women love drag and continually go to shows. I doubt there are many black people wanting to attend black-face minstrel shows.

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Ezmyrelda → M. R. • 3 hours ago

Whether it's done by straight men or gay men doesn't mean a lick of difference. If it actually were about gay men unleashing an inner diva that society looks down on in MEN they would be MEN and do it as MEN. If Drag performers want to divest themselves of their portrayal of us in their "artform" I would have no problem with it.. But as they are appropriating our images while they are reinforcing stereotypes that women are catty bitches.. That I have problems with. Women and men both love some questionable and fucked up shit.. Doesn't mean they are right.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Die screaming → Ezmyrelda • an hour ago

Fuck you and your crackerjack identity.

You loathsome, pretentious political shill.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

M. R. → Ezmyrelda • 3 hours ago

I've never been under the impression that there is a stereotype of women as catty bitches. That stereotype is much more associated with gay men and that comes out in the performance of drag. I can't speak for all drag queens but it gives many a new form of confidence to be able to take on this role of another person completely different from themselves, and yet very true to who they feel they are. It's a complete transformation and I have never once felt like women were victimized. I don't need to be a woman either to feel this, just as I don't need to be black to notice racism.

The humour of drag is definitely not at women's expense. There is no jokes about being emotional, or just wanting to get married, or any other typical woman-jokes. The jokes are about over-sexuality, and tongue-and-cheek references to them being men, etc.

I cannot tell you that you are not offended if you are, but I really do not think that drag is a form of misogyny.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Ezmyrelda → M. R. • 2 hours ago

Ahh.. I see.. They want to gain a new form of confidence by being somebody completely different to themselves.. But those people that they are supposedly expressing themselves as are somehow 99% of the time women.. That you define "women-jokes" as supposedly a very specific thing and reference sexist tropes says a lot about what you do and don't see.

Unfortunately sometimes you actually do have to be a woman and live as a woman to understand and see these things.. You may think you understand racism. But unless you were a black man you would never understand it intrinsically.. I'm hispanic, and I would never lower myself by disrespecting the black man by thinking I understand one damned iota of what they deal with on a day to day basis.. Instead.. I see the slights to women and trans people..

M. R. → Ezmyrelda • 2 hours ago

Okay then in your better experience can you please name a specific time you saw a drag queen and saw some sort of misogynistic joke? And if so, was it in such bad taste that it would forever cloud the minds of those in attendance, making them think less of women or was it a light-hearted throwaway joke? And do you think that drag queen's existence have harmed women in any way and how so?

It's true drag queens could dress as animals, aliens, minerals or whatever if they want to express themselves in a different way other than masculinity, but sticking to being humans express themselves in a different way other than masculinity, but sticking to being humans seems more appealing and relatable.

The difference between acting as the opposite gender versus a culture on stage is that gender norms are something you are forced to identify with by society. Cultural norms are not forced upon you. They are coincidences that people share in a community. Not every black person will enjoy what we consider aspects of black culture, and that is not really a problem. A black man not liking watermelon is not a problem, so it is a problem when someone makes a joke about black people liking watermelon. It is insulting and ignorant. But if you are a man, society is less accepting of you not partaking in "male" culture. Example: a teen boy taking wearing lipstick vs. not will get more grief than the reverse. You are banned from acting "feminine" and thus the

I am a trans person and I know of the tense relationship with the drag community. I also know drag is many things, including a way of challenging gender norms. It's also part of the identity of some drag performers, an alter ego that is still part of their whole. I don't have anything against them.

I do have plenty against people like Ru Paul who try to speak for trans people while being immune to the negative impacts of his actions..

Alllll righty then douchebag.. What in the fuck would you call the society we live in? No, don't bother.. It doesn't serve you for women to get the same rights in our society.. If you think we do have the same rights and opportunities you are just another smug self satisfied deluded MRA dudebro just like all the other ones sucking eachothers cocks at this particular shit show.. Just because you desperately don't want it to exist (because that would mean you weren't as great as you thought you were and the history of men would just look like a long string of men acting shitty to women) doesn't mean it doesn't exist.. You are fucking paid by society to look the other way. Of course you deny it's existence..

You can't make something true just by repeating it over and over again louder and louder.. Though.. strangely.. That does seem to be the most favored tactic by testosterone choked emotional infants like you.

It would amuse you. You seem like an asshole.. Yes, my father died when I was 11.. Yes, of course I have issues with his death. It amuses me that you actually think you can distill my complex and extremely unique issues into having anything to do with my transition though.. I have no problems saying that I ignored who I knew myself to be because I was distraught for most of my life because of his passing.. I have no problems baring my soul.. It's certainly stronger than your ignorant intolerance..

I can already tell that people are going to deliberately misunderstand me.. But I don't really give a crap what people who are determined to misunderstand me think.. I was always very girly, I was always feminine even before he died, and I felt very much like a daddies girl when he was alive..

I was made this way for a reason.. My struggles and life lessons have nothing to do with your struggles or life lessons.. and my goals to become a better person do not include small minded people like you..

As a transgender lesbian I am coming closer and closer to that which I adore. The divine and compassionate nature of femininity..

No, I don't want you in my club. (To be trans is not to be gay). No I don't believe B or T belong with GLBT. I want you to cure yourself. I want you to find self acceptance and self love without having to harm the physical form you are and deny. I want you to learn to be the person you were meant to be and harness that genetic destiny without needing to mutilate your body because the current profit-seeking establishment coddled and accepted and elevated your mental illness. You suffer from gender envy and self hate and need the right medication and counseling to overcome your problem. I pity people like you and I've held the hand of 35+ post-op transgender individuals who have told me their life story, their path to transitioning, and how it destroyed their lives. How they feel lied to and unhappy they underwent surgery. Many of them wish they had never listened to the psychologists telling them that reassignment was a cure. I know these people personally and have seen their suffering and regression. Healing your mental illness is possible because it's environmental in nature and takes time to overcome that social programming you suffer from.

He's not saying this stuff because he hates trans sexuals, he just wants them to get the proper mental health they need. Counseling, medication, and a road to self acceptance rather than coddling, reinforcement of a delusion, and the allowance of self mutilation when there's many, many trans people who regress, regret, and feel they have been betrayed by the medical and psychological establishment. Transitioning is not a cure. Counseling and self acceptance is.

Oh, jesus fuck.. Yeah dude.. He's a real mother theresa.. A regular dalai lama of good intentions and positivity..

"many, many".. Is that an approximation, ballpark, or just pulled out of your ass.. You don't know any fucking trans people.. Quit fucking lying..

Again, I will tell you that anybody who feels betrayed by the medical community has nobody but themselves to blame.. You have no idea what the process for going through transition is like. Nobody just hands us a tranny card.. I spent 20 years of my life believing I was male while being miserable everyday.. I start transitioning and start taking hormones and I suddenly can think without feeling despair.. Your greatest assumption is that I can't tell you if I'm happy or not.. Get off your high horse. What you are doing is nothing more than attempting to erase my achievements and happiness. If you're so interested in counseling how about you take it for being gay and see how well that works out for you.. and dude bro.. I accept myself.. I am fucking beautiful.. I won the goddamned genetic lottery as far as trans women are concerned.. My body is lithe and feminine. Sure, I have problems with self esteem. Everyone does.. I would like to be a more diplomatic communicator.. Everyone has room for improvement.. But when I look into the mirror I want to see a pretty girl staring back.. and I do.. So.. go ahead.. continue to limit yourself by your tired stereotypes and assumptions.. I couldn't give two fucks about your level of enlightenment.. Your monkeys. Your circus.
